BUSINESS MEN WANT HIGHER GRADE BALL

Possible Chance That Richmond May Get in Eastern League Warmly Received on All Sides. Money Can Be Easily Raised if Present

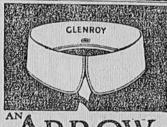

Interests Are Timid. BY GUS MALBERT. The fact that there seems to with popular favor. Expressions of opinions from men who count have been heard, and these expressions not only are to the effect that every effort should be made to secure the franchise, if it is procurable, but that the campaign should be started now.

Argument that the local taugnate has not been approached by any person or persons offering the Baltimore franchise for sale is funny. Certainly he has not been approached, nor is the Baltimore franchise on the market at this time. There is, however, a strong probability that the franchise will be for sale, and this is the point that is being brought out pow.

If Richmond wants the Baltimore franchise, then it is up to Richmond to go after it, not sit down and wait for the franchise to come on a silver platter. It may be that when the time comes for the franchise to be placed on the market that there will

If, as has been stated, there has been a diminution in the crowds atthat fact is attributable only to the class of baseball which has been ofand anxious baseball clientele can fur-nish for that class of baseball. To use it as an argument that Richmond will not support an Eastern League team is to hoist one's self by one's own petard. Given the right kind of base-ball, with a team which can nold its own, and Richmond has aiways been one of the best ball towns in the coun-try.

one of the best ball towns in the country.

But to presume that the Richmond ball-going public is willing to accept any and everything is a presumption not warranted and an affront to these same people. No people on sarth are more willing to pay the price for the goods than are the people living in it this town. Of course, from some view-points, it may be unfortunate that the people here are able to distinguish between the real article and the imitation. But should they be blamed for that?

Fans Want Better Ball.

It is a question for the people and not for the individual. If the majority of the people who support the game want the higher grade article, and are willing to put up the money to pay for it, they are entitled to consideration. If, on the other hand, the present controllers of the baseball situation here are timid and feel that the people will not stand the gaff, then it is up to the present controllers to step down and out and give the people a chance.

The statement is made, and made

ple a chance.

The statement is made, and made advisedly, that even should it require $100,000 to secure the franchise, in the event that it is for sale, that sum can be raised. And the money will come from the business people of Richmond—men who have made successes of their business and who are devotees of the sport. They will make the investment as much from business sagaicity as from pride in the city. Sensitiment will be a large factor, but it
